■ Toronto is a hub of public service excellence with large numbers of municipal, provincial and federal public servants living and working in the region.

Couple this activity with our rich variety of university and college programs in public administration and policy and the Toronto region represents a powerful concentration of public service professionalism.

What is the future role of the public service and how does IPAC Toronto fit into this role? What new things can IPAC Toronto do to help ensure a strong, relevant, professional public service in the Toronto region that is up to the challenges of an increasingly complex future?

Join IPAC Toronto Region Group for its Annual General Meeting followed by Peter MacLeod's innovative insights on future trends in public service excellence. This session is designed to let you have the opportunity to talk with others about what you think these trends mean for you, your work and for the IPAC Toronto Region Group.
